Lubuskie

unquestionably belongs to the most beautiful regions of western Poland. Located in the proximity of Polish-German border it offers a lot both for active tourists and wild nature explorers as the typical landscape features include extensive forests, criss-crossed by numerous rivers and patched by lakes. Its picturesque, unspoiled environment and a wide range of attractions makes the place a “must” even for most demanding tourists.

The province area – ultimately shaped during the glacial period – consists of all types of landscape: sandy plains, highlands and ranges of moraine hills split by deep and vast glacial valleys of local rivers.

A major part of the region is covered by South-Baltic Lakeland and the basin of the River of Odra, being the main river of western Poland. Other major rivers include: Nysa Łużycka, Bóbr, Warta, Noteć and Odra. It is in their curves and old beds one will find the most beautiful wildlife reserves and charming marshes.

Lubuskie area is covered by forests in almost 50% - which earns it the title of the most forested Polish province. The major forests include: Rzepin Forest, Zielona Góra Forest and Sulęcín-Skwierzyna Forest as well as those extending far beyond the province's border, such as Noteć Forest, Gorzów Forest, Drawsko Forest and, finally, Lower Silesia (Dolnośląskie) Forests. The main tourist attractions consist then of large forested areas, numerous lakes and unspoiled environment. This is where most tourist destinations are located: near picturesque lakes and rivers surrounded by beautiful forests. Since 2004 the Regional Tourist Organisation of Lubuskie “LOTUR” has held a contest for the best tourist product granting the award of the Tourists’ Pearl of Lubuskie enabling the winners to qualify to the national edition awarded with a POT (Polish Tourist Organization) certificate. Herein the winners of the past editions are presented – those awarded with POT certificates, Tourists’ Pearl of Lubuskie, as well as nominees for the 2013 “Pearl” contest.

Woodstock Rock Station

Gold Certificate POT 2011

Golden Toursits' Pearl of Lubuskie 2009

POT Certificate 2003

Przystanek Woodstock (Woodstock Rock Station) is the largest free of charge music festival held yearly at the turn of July and August. The festival has been held in Lubuskie since 1997, originally near the town of Żary and since 2004 in Kostrzyn-on-Odra. The festival is organized and sponsored by "The Great Orchestra of Festive Help", which is a major Polish charity foundation. The idea behind the "Woodstock" event is to thank to all the voluntary workers, fund raisers and donators who supported the foundation's January national finals.
